BLOOMINGTON

Who can forget the spacial magnificence of Myer Hall- especially the downstairs Ladies Room? Yes, it was a cramped and somewhat dark building that we gathered in those first two years, but Margaret and Peggy, our inestimably valuable secretaries, managed to make even the dreariest days livable (Margaret with her never-ending candy jar, and Peggy with her forgiveness of all the papers we were forever turning in late).

Our professors certainly had personality- from Dr. Prangue, who continually impressed us with his stunts on the ski slopes (even if it was 2 years before our arrival on campus), to the wisest grandaddy pathologist of them all, Dr. Pizzo. He was a man who not only defied the aging process entirely but could intellectually lecture on any topic, at any given moment (really, just ask him!). There was no shortage of soap boxes in Bloomington, even the staff joined in, with Dr. Creek diagnosing every patient with a rheumatological disorder of some kind, whether they had one or not.

Bloomington cannot be adequately mentioned, though without a tribute to Lee Simpson, who coordinated the clinical program and listened to our incessant griping and complaining (something which our class perfected to an art). For that patience, Lee deserves to be nominated for the sainthood at the very least.

We lost a few on the way- one who decided within the first month that all that studying really interfered with his lifestyle. We even seriously contemplated killing each other on several occasions, but we all muddled through, and I believe are all on speaking terms. All in all, Bloomington was a pretty nifty place to get though the drudgery of the first two years. From the college bars to the Uptown Cafe there was plenty to do and see. And, who can compare the feeling of seeing the dogwoods and the redbuds in bloom just before final exams: just the ray of hope we needed after spending quality time with our cadavers.

EVANSVILLE

The class of 1996 Evansville Center's collective medical school experience can best be summed up by this short list of do's and don'ts:

Do perform the Sugar Shuffle on special occasions. Do consult "AV boy" (aka King Mazataza) with any technical difficulties. Don't forget your yellow pages. Do heed Dr. Matheson's warning about the table by the window. Don't try to form a softball league out of your med school class (team slogan, "we were not last"). Do have beard-growing contests. Don't have leg hair growing contests. Don't let male medical students play with golf carts unattended. Do play lots of Euchre (speed Euchre if you're short on time). Don't call and cancel classes without the express consent of Debbie Brakel. Do chemically purge your short-term memory after all cluster-type exams. Do have a 70's party for Dave Tyring's birthday, but don't take pictures. Do eat pizza from Turoni's and drink gerst at Ianhuck's (starring Cosmic Debris). Don't let Steed eat hot and sour soup, unless aspiration precautions are used. Do confirm that your cadaver is circumcised, but if uncertain, consult an expert. Do burn your Gross Anatomy clothes, but be sure to use a fireproof container. Do phone harass physiology professors and their wives. Do not proceed to a Jimmy Buffet concert if you receive any of the following signs from God: 1) forgotten tickets 2) locked out of car 3) speeding ticket x2 4) rain. Don't walk home from Harpole's at 3 am without the proper repellants. Do wear "gas masks" in path lecture. Don't fear the Green Man. Don't lose touch with your classmates. "It would make as much sense as getting pregnant to avoid using birth control."

FORT WAYNE

As we began our journey into the world of medicine, our first stop was Fort Wayne. This is where the foundation was to be laid and the bonds of friendship began. Those first two years challenged us all but thanks to the support and guidance of all of the staff at the Fort Wayne campus we rose to the challenge and managed to have fun along the way. Looking back, those days are now some of the fondest in our medical school career and the friendships some of the strongest.

GARY

In the far industrial northwest corner of Indiana known by some as "the region", the eighteen students who spent their first two years at the Gary campus learned the basic sciences through an alternative curriculum focused on group discussion. They also dodged gunfire and grand theft auto...

When they were not horsing around in the anatomy lab, favorite social spots included the "Rookies", "Heck's Landing", and the Hobart "Red Rooster". Some attest that volleyball and samurai wrestling were the hot extracurricular activities-- as well as golf.

Indianapolis

As the largest regional campus in the state, the Indianapolis campus class of 1996 was represented by many diverse people from all different backgrounds. Although each person has their own "special" memories from the first two years of medical school, we definitely shared some unforgettable episodes among the 162 of us as medical school at IUSOM evolved each year with multiple curricular changes.

We were the last class to have to trudge over to Larue Carter every Wednesday morning for "Introduction to Human Behavior," take a multiple choice exam on some aspect of psychology that we didn't really understand but could remember enough of the bold print to pass, and spend two sometimes painful, sometimes hilarious hours with a small group of our peers talking about human feelings. Biochemistry and microbiology will never change, but histology lectures will get over sooner, now that Dr. Jersild and his jokes have retired! Second semester brought us back to reality as our Friday afternoons no longer belonged to us, but instead to Dr. O'Connor and his gang. "Whenever I think of the radial nerve", I think of how many questions I missed in the lab practical and how the brachial plexus just isn't as relevant anymore. Gross Anatomy almost broke quite a few of us, but the sweetest time of the year was Friday night after a gross exam (except for the person who had to clean up the Lockefield clubhouse after those parties!). I think we drove Dr. Byrd to extinction: Ty Montgomery visited the Gross Lab as a senior T.A. and his autograph in the lab reads "The Master of Delaying Tactics..."

Second year brought confidence that we could handle anything, anticipation about finally getting out of the classroom, and an overhanging fear of USMLE Step 1 ("do you think this will be on boards?"). Everyone has an embarrassing story from History and Physical Diagnosis class whether you admit it or not. We bonded together against Dr. Pless and his band of thugs (urinary stasis does increase the risk of bladder cancer) and were vindicated after everyone passed the bogus final. As much fun as we had the first two years, I think everyone will agree we were finally ready to meet the rest of our class during boards.....

SOUTH BEND

Our first day at the South Bend campus we were welcomed by the ever famous "Touchdown Jesus". Also in that first day we experienced a center tradition: our first day in the anatomy lab. We were all led into the lab by the staff and second year med students. Our job was to take the cadavers out of their bags, but to our surprise, the first bag we opened had a live person in it! Needless to say, we received a quick lesson in GI and renal physiology (i.e. sphincter tone) that day. After that first day, we all managed to settle into the routine of medical school classes, the long study hours, and the art of tail-gaiting. "Ted/Fred's Med Shed" was born that year and provided many enjoyable times before ND football games. Of course, the first year was extremely hard but with the help of Ted/Fred's Quote of the Day we were able to persevere. One quote we all remember was from our director Dr. O'Malley, "Just do it, damn it!!" Two more memorable quotes of the first year were in anatomy class, "It just peters out in the end" and "is that actual size?" As one can probably figure the subject was male anatomy. During the second year, our class had two main objectives, one was to get in shape and the second was to take a little knowledge about medicine had and find the "truth" in it. It was a common sight at lunch to see a group of us going to work out, running, or throwing the football around. The rest of our time was devoted to finding the truth in what we had learned. For example, we often had discussions with Frank Necrosis, Frank Mittelschmerz, etc. We also saw visions of "Hollytosis" dancing around the room. But the best day was when "I Got Sprue, Babe." So "by God", we found the truth. As second semester dragged on, we all found ways to keep learning fun, whether it was Jumbles from the back of the room; the "Brian, Matt, and Ted videos-to-see" list; taking swigs from Mike's little flask; having a heater by your feet, or to just give up and sleep-PAUL!! During the second year, Troy, Ted, and Steve got married--not to each other. By the end of our second year, we had all become good friends and remain friends-at least I think. We would all like to thank the professors and staff at the South Bend center for their support, encouragement, and knowledge that they gave us.

-Eric Jenkinson

INTRAMURAL ATHLETICS

The class of '96 participated strongly in IM athletics throughout its four years at IUPUI. Several teams were fielded each year for basketball and volleyball, and a softball team played for two years. IM's were always a great stress releiver and a lot of fun for those who participated. Several times the overmatched med students recited the phrase "it's not whether you win or lose...". One year, one basketball team's only victory was by forfeit! But it didn't matter, because it was fun to play. The MS3 Volleyball team Spiking Fever won the IM championship, making its team members Pam Harting, Danielle Mahaffey, Rob Rudicel, John Moore, Byron Ladd, and Lee Williams the only known IM champions during med school.

Members of team Elvis got a boost in the playoffs as Drew "the King" Parr rooted them on in a full costume (real sideburns), during second year. They lost (left).

Hetal Karsan concentrated before shooting from the charity stripe. Although he graduated from IU, it was obvious he never played for the General. The kid was Brick City from outside (right).

Tim: The opportunity to make a difference in someone else's life is a rare and precious gift. I am very proud of your achievement and chosen path. Love, Mom.

John Edward Williamson

Dr. Johnny, your family thinks you're remarkable. Our hearts are filled with pride and love. Congratulations for a job well done. Best wishes for a bright future. Love, Mom and Dad.

Something To Think About

If we could shrink the earth's population to a village of precisely 100 people, but all the existing nations remained the same, it would look like this:

57 Asians

21 Europeans

14 Western Hemisphere People

8 Africans

70 of the 100 would be non-white and non-Christian

30 would be white and Christian

50% of the entire world's wealth would be in the hands of only 6 people--all 6 would be citizens of the United States

70 would be unable to read

50 would suffer from malnutrition;

80 would live in substandard housing,

1 would have a university education

We have a unique responsibility to use our resources and talents in ways which will improve our world.
